The game features over 45 minutes of original game score, as well as the songs by the Runners that are played on each radio station in the game. There are five radio stations in Need for Speed: Most Wanted- Playlist FM, Black Beat FM, Underground Classics, Radio Los Santos and Radio X. The songs featured on each radio station are listed below: Playlist FM - Radio Plays: Black Beat FM - Radio Plays: Underground Classics - Radio Plays: Following the release of the game, there were three promotional singles that were released for download. These promotional releases of "Redline" by Linkin Park, "Gotta Get Through This" by Men at Work and "Crawling" by Linkin Park were not part of the soundtrack of NFSUW. The release of these singles is tied to the release of Need for Speed Underground 2 (2005), as it is meant to promote the game. At the time of release, rock music was popular in game culture, and these songs were very popular in the game industry. "Redline" by Linkin Park can be downloaded at EB Games website for free. It is available only to the United States and Canada. "Redline" for NFS U2 was also included in a bonus CD with the Japanese version of "Underground 2". In 2008, an album of remixes from Need for Speed: Most Wanted was released onto iTunes by EA Music. This compilation includes 17 tracks from the score of the game composed by Magnus Birgersson and Richard Jacques with a bonus track called "Drag", which is the same song featured on Playback FM in-game. A song from the game, "Gotta Get Through This" by Men at Work was released as downloadable content for the Xbox 360 version of "Need for Speed: Undercover", on November 14, 2009. The song is also featured in "Need for Speed: ProStreet" on the same day as the release of NFS U2 on November 14, 2009. A cover of LCD Soundsystem's 1985 hit single, "Losing My Edge", produced by Kevin Alvarez was released as downloadable content for the Xbox 360 version of "Need for Speed Shift 2 Unleashed", on October 10, 2009. The song is also featured in the soundtrack of NFSU2. A cover of The Smashing Pumpkins' 1991 hit single, "Today", produced by Jim Beanz was released as downloadable content for the PlayStation 3 version of "Need for Speed: ProStreet", on October 28, 2009. The song is also featured in the soundtrack of NFS Pro Street.
